Worries About Coronavirus Death Toll Lead To Sell-Off On Wall Street

NEWS / FUNDAMENTAL
(Reuters)

The sell-off on Wall Street came amid renewed coronavirus concerns after White House officials warned of nearly a quarter million deaths from the pandemic.

White House officials are now projecting between 100,000 and 240,000 deaths in the U.S. as a result of the outbreak, which Trump previously sought to downplay. "This could be a hell of a bad two weeks. This is going to be a very bad two, and maybe three weeks. This is going to be like we've never seen before," Trump said. More than 200,000 confirmed coronavirus cases in the U.S. and more than 4,500 deaths.

From the Desk of Wyckoff Trader

I've often said that the planet could / would take care of itself...if it needed to do some pruning?

If you have been a long time subscriber you may have remembered that I would often say; "Any major war is started on the spring equinox date."

I wrote that often and I said that often. And who knew?

In the pros and numbas on Jan-21 this appeared:

Asian and European are lower due to a virus sweeping China. Four have died so far. Travelers are avoiding the Asian lands.

On Jan-31 this what the experts had to say...

Earlier in the day, the U.S. confirmed its first human to human transmission of the virus, which has killed 171 people in China and has spread to as many as 18 other countries. The virus has reportedly infected more than 8,100 people so far, outnumbering the infections saw during the entire SARS outbreak of 2002 and 2003. However, Tedros said the WHO wasn't recommending "measures that unnecessarily interfere with international trade or travel".

Yesterday (Apr-1) I attended a town hall meeting via phone and Trump states that up to 140,000 to 240,000 or more deaths are to be expected in the USA. I made a prediction we'd be at 1,000,000 infections by Friday (Apr-3) and today Apr-01 is 918,126 and climbing.

LOOKING FORWARD

We've come off the high from yesterday. Globex was unable to hold a bid. The news is started to hit the fan so to speak.

We've found a little support off the 2467 handle.

Could still test the 2445 low made on Mar-20 at 18:00 marker.

This could be a #3 spring. If that gives away look for further downside movement. This could be a spring. A #2 spring with a move up and a test.

I'm just a regular guy; Not Silver spoon family or WALL Street / Chicago network or Financial Fast Track educational express super star golden boy, I have an Intimate knowledge of the insider mindset / how the insiders on Wall Street think act and position their trades.

I wrote my own charting program. I don't use indicators. Just judgment: interaction of Price, Volume and Time. I focus on the Intraday waves of the market and how they are timed to the "hidden clock" of the market. I look at the composite man the "insider" in terms of the market. Others look at bulls and bears (my strongest point)

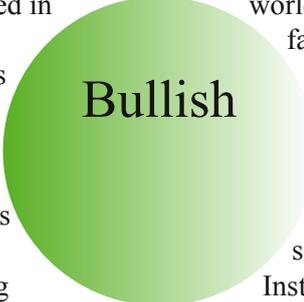

I SEE THE MARKET IN TERMS OF THE COMPOSITE MAN / INSIDER – Most traders look at the market in terms of bulls and bears. This creates a dichotomy. A duality of the mind. Wyckoff looked at the market in terms of Composite Man / "insiders".

Overnight Geopolitical

ASIAN, (Reuters) - Asian stocks ended mixed on Thursday as the coronavirus continued its punishing march, infecting over 937,000 people and killing more than 47,000 worldwide. White House officials have warned of nearly a quarter million deaths in the U.S. from COVID-19, raising fears of a prolonged economic slump in the world's largest economy. China's Shanghai Composite index climbed 46.12 points, or 1.69 percent, to 2,780.64 after the country logged fewer new infections. China had 35 new cases of the disease on April 1, all of which were imported.

EUROPE, (Reuters) - European stocks were little changed in cautious trade on Thursday as coronavirus infections around the world approached one million. The pan European Stoxx 600 was virtually unchanged at 310.73 after plummeting 2.9 percent on Wednesday. The German DAX traded flat while France's CAC 40 index and the U.K.'s FTSE 100 were up around 0.2 percent. BP Plc shares soared 7 percent and Royal Dutch Shell climbed 8.6 percent.

NEW YORK (Reuters) - As the world markets are discussing a fall off from the coronavirus pandemic and the recession, the early signs from the U.S. Futures suggest that Wall Street might open significantly lower. Institute for Supply Management's Manufacturing Index for March and Construction Spending for February are the major economic announcements on Wednesday. Asian shares finished mostly lower,

I never thought when I designed the Modified Tape Reading Chart that we would have a consistent 100 plus trading range days.

The number on the left is the range in twenty-five cent units.

The numbers to the right are the one minute closes.

I never dreamed we would have four handle ranges between minute closes.

Now that the Algos are running the pits there seems to be a more tendency for price to rip through ranges and levels.

Let's give it some time and see if we get back to normal or if the abnormal is to be the norm?

Corrections & Clarifications

Whilst I try to be perfect in all that I do...we both realize...yea' that's NOT GOING TO HAPPEN!

From time to time I may hit a six instead of a nine as in last weeks weekly pivot or get a day out of synch. I will try to render it right in the most expeditious way.

But I'm like Kenney Chesney, once I cut the song I don't listen to the album. After so many revisions I just can't see the words anymore.

So The time I make a "Way to go BoBo!" and you feel the urge to point out the arrow of my ways feel free to point it out and shoot me an email at feedback@wyckoffamtrader.com.

(Be the GREATEST ME you can be. In all things be your greatest me)

Dear Friend,

In the minds of some world leaders (which I will get to in a moment) America is...NO LONGER GREAT!

Once upon a time, in a yesterday not too far from today, only a few decades ago in the minds of its people America was the land of opportunity. SHE was the land of greatness...but not so much anymore!

Adrian Rodgers my mother's brother best friend the past president of the Southern Baptist Convention once said, and it is so apro...

"You can not multiply wealth by dividing it!"

We've somehow diminished ourselves to settle for something less than great.

It's like the real estate salesman Who's trying to lock you into the HOME OF LESS your DREAMS – way over your wants, desires, and price – "Sure, the kid's bedroom is small...but look at your master bedroom.

As I promised in yesterday's Market Recap video here is the proof I was talking about the young/Johnny Come Lately bulls entering the party the day before. I've attached a link to Monday's Market Recap.

This is the copy I wrote for a site. I went on line the Day Nancy decided to impeach Trump. It sums up my philosophy.

IS that about it?

I mean really! If you watch this stuff. I mean really watch this stuff - - - across all the securities in the DOW; you can easily see that there is NO real bid or offer in the market anymore. Just a bunch of catfish chasing a frozen block of worms in the pond. (see my webinar) . . .

ALGOS . . . I GUARANTEE IT! Now, of course, trading is more art than science. Some say it is PURE MATH.

Really, you will learn more than you ever thought about the market. And if you need it, it will PROVE TO YOU that I AM THE REAL DEAL!

I say; "Some days - it's shooting fish in the barrel - with WB's hidden clock and the Wyckoff Wyckoff Wave. But YOU have to subscribe to the AM TURN to see for yourself" Don't accept a copy . . . get your original AM TURN before the OPENING BELL!" (you usually get it dropped in your email inbox at 9:00 or so)

One last comment: I did NOT live in 1930. I can not tell you I saw the market in 1930. I can tell you from what I've seen of Wyckoff charts; price movement is the same today in 2018 just as it was in 1930.

Make more money by losing less Time your trade to the E-Mini Clock

WB would often say; "If I could choose one day out of the four days to trade, I'd go fishing on S1 and S4 days and only trade S2L days!"

Well, this is why WB would forgo all the other days...except this day.

Your first goal should be to isolate the day as either Normal or Aberrant. The quicker you can determine if the day's potential is Aberrant the quicker you have to ensure you get the best trade location.

That's really the goal of the clock. To give you the best trade location. Sure I provide levels where shelves of supply are just waiting to get hit. And you want to fade those for the Sardine trades. Usually for 2 to 4 handles profit with a 2 handle stop.

Lately, you may have needed to extend that to 3 in the volatile times.

Why two handles?

It's really mathematical and your tolerance for risk. I'll break it out.

And ideal trading account should be $50,000 US dollars. Not that you have to have $50K but is the best number that will assure you the greatest probability of success. Now, this number is the best in any endeavor. Sure you can start a business with $500 and word of mouth. But if you got $50K your chances of success are greater in any endeavor.

It's just basic mathematics. Why is that?

One half of one percent of $50,000 = $250

In any business, $250 to $300 is a minimal investment in any marketing or endeavor. If it doesn't work out...no worries. Your focus should be the ROI (Return on Investment) not the cost. So, if you have a trading idea and give it a 2 handle stop then...

2 handles X $50 = $200

3 handles X $50 = $300

Average $200 + $300 = $500 / 2 = $250

It's just mathematics. There are tables you can pull up the risk of ruin.

Ok so if the first trade runs you over which is a strong market, if you get in at the start...it may very well. Get out take your loss. And get ready for the next trade. Changes are you'll get some of it back and maybe more. It's just one-half of one percent of your total capital 0.005 loss.

What Moves the Market?

The number one mistake most traders make is to step back and wait for the market to prove them right; when they should be ready willing and able to let the market prove them wrong.

The qualities essential to the equipment of a speculator (trader/investor) are Judgment, self-reliance, courage, prudence, and pliability.

And these should be added to quality patience. In brief, rigid self-control is half the battle. You must train yourself to act upon your decisions and to carry them to a successful conclusion. Operate with no emotions be indifferent to each trades outcome. Be willing to let the market prove you wrong!
